Selection criteria

PLEXIGLAS® was chosen because optical quality played a major role. Smoke was blown through the tubes, creating special stage effects in combination with specific lighting.

Description of application

Tubes of more than 9m in length and sheets of 4m in length were installed for the stage set.

The columns varied in diameter between 500 mm and 1,750 mm, and consisted of one, two or three parts depending on their size. They were bonded using ACRIFIX® 2R 0190.

The Salzburg Easter Festival was established by Herbert von Karajan in 1967. Each year, they comprise an opera production and a number of concerts. The 10-day event is considered the world's most elite festival, and is independent in terms of organization and funding from the Salzburg Festival that is organized each Pentecost and summer.
